

Home News » Events » Videos » Blogs » Intelligence » Advertise » About Us » Archives »

Jobs Subscribe

Home » News » Latest News

Google +

Glebe Farm invests in new gluten-free oat mill

06 January, 2015

By Bronya Smolen

Glebe Farm Foods, one of the UK's biggest gluten-free oat suppliers is to build a new multi-million-pound plant to increase production.

The company told British Baker that production of a second oat mill had begun, which means it can grow its output fourfold and increase its customer base by 25%.

Philip Rayner, joint managing director and technical expert, said: "It's about meeting customer demand, plus the export opportunities are pretty significant; there are a lot of companies which manufacture in Europe and we want to expand out there."

The company said it would also be pushing to further improve the quality and number of products, to give bakers the opportunity to increase their own product range.

Rayner continued: "Our main focus is to get the best gluten-free product possible, have a high reliability, as this is essential in an allergy market - when we supply products we always supply undetectable levels of allergies."

The addition of the second plant means that Glebe Farm Foods will be made up of a 100,000sq ft production area.

The increase in output also means the plant can meet demands from customers looking to produce mainstream products with gluten-free oats instead of the alternative.

The second mill also means the company will have a dual supply of oats, so that bigger companies will have back-up produce.

New plants and oat shed at Glebe Farm

Search

Enter your email address here

SIGNUP

SUPPLIER
WEBINARS

REPORTS

TECHNICAL PAPERS

Grain for Good: Natural Ingredients for a Fitter Future

If you have a stake in the future of the bakery industry, and need market and technical insights on natural ingredients, this webinar is a must.

Insights from the Bakery Market Report 2014

On demand Web Broadcast: British Baker presents expert opinion and discussion on the retail bakery market, offering an insight into its Bakery Market Report.

Enter your email address here

SIGNUP

Printer friendly version

Email this article to a friend

Keywords: Europe, ingredients, flapjack, allergies, oat, Glebe Farm, gluten free oats, allergy

Related articles:

- Sales and profits up at Barry Callebaut
- Aryzta reports European revenue rise for first quarter
- Tesco profits slump again
- Costa awarded Best Coffee Chain accolade
- Subway appoints new Europe marketing director

7 days

14 days

1 month

1. BF Done & Son shuts shop over Christmas
2. UK retailers 'optimistic' for 2015
3. Bad Boys' Bakery set to grow
4. New health campaign targets sugar
5. Gluten-free win for NO.G at awards
6. Thorntons issues Christmas profit warning
7. Pub opens bakery on-site
8. Warburtons in Paddington Bear cinema prom...
9. UK coffee shops outperform retail
10. Birds of Derby opens new-look shop

19 - 21 January, 2015

The Hospitality Show

06 - 08 February, 2015

Cake International

Click here to submit an event

With bite-size portions going mainstream, will you be downsizing any of your products?

Yes

Baker

BritishBaker: Exciting news for #GlutenFree as @GlebeFarmFoods builds second gluten free oat plant <http://t.co/kz2i16n6Z5> <http://t.co/MetEAJwLQR> 06/01/2015 04:38 AM